

The ‘Action contre la Faim adventure’ started a decade ago for Thomas L. DUDU Senior, the current national clearing officer of our Liberia mission. Ten years of hard work, pleasant time and commitment to the organization.

Since the beginning of his employment service with ACF, Dudu has worked as a clearing officer in the logistics department in Monrovia. He is responsible for clearing through the customs the frets that contain the program equipments such as drugs for the Therapeutic Feeding Center or pipes and pumps for the Watsan programs. He is also involved in getting the visas and flight tickets for the employees traveling. It is a responsibility that he acquired recently.

Dudu has enjoyed and still enjoys as much his job. His sparkling eyes prove it. What he likes the most is to meet a panel of people: from Ministers to expatriates of various nationalities or young fellow workers.

When he addressed himself to all these intermediaries, he puts forward the ACF principles but also his personal motto in life: “Love all, hate none”. This personal aspect made him to be designated as the best INGO employee in Liberia in 2006.

Dudu is a living memory of the mission: he has seen the mission organizing itself with programs opening up and others closing down according to the decade’s humanitarian crisis in the country.

Dudu is - for sure - an emblematic figure of the Liberia mission!

Interview lead by Corinne GRANT – December 2006